Hospital Board;

Decide Future Of Institution

Princeton Hospital was offered for $20,000 by I. B. Tanner, last week and the action to move the institution to the hotel building, on a part of the property, understood to have been taken, an officer reported.

Members of the board, met Wednesday night, heard proposition explained by Lisanby, president, and to report the matter to the organizations representing the hospital.

The hospital is just about having even on operation expense. The Leader learned this having approximately in its bank balance at the time, with all bills paid.

Approximately $2300 was deposited last year to help make up the deficit and keep the institution in operation, an officer said.

At the opening of the new hospital at Marion, a considerable number of patients from Madison county who might come here for hospitalization have gone to their homes instead and Dr. F. T. Lisanby is going to the Marion hospital to perform operations.

The hospital here needs new and numerous other repairs, Mrs. C. H. Jagers, vice president, said. Several members of the board feel the time has come to launch a financial campaign looking toward building a new hospital here, or to leasing a large house on a lot for conversion to hospital purposes.

Residence of the late Mrs. Kevill has been prominently mentioned in this connection at week, the local American Legion post began a financial campaign seeking donations which to buy this home convert it into a club for veterans of World War I and No. 2.

City To Extend
Water Line Soon

Council Also Plans Relief Of Flooded Sections Of Town

At Monday's City Council session, attended by all members, the mayor presiding, approval was given a proposal to extend the water main to the city limits on the Varmint Trace. J. S. Stinebaugh, representing the I. C. Railroad, stated his company proposed to extend the line to the South Yards.

It is proposed to use a four-inch main in making the extension to the city limits and to install two fire hydrants, affording protection to a section of the city now unprotected by the city's water and fire-fighting equipment, an official said. Cost of the extension will approximate $2,000.

Of Children's Society
In Kentucky

Optimism as to success of the Easter campaign of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, which ends April 1, was expressed by Dr. J. J. Rosenthal, county chairman, as he announced that $281.50 of the county's quota has been given to date. Reports from the society's headquarters in Louisville indicate in some cases returns are slower than usual because of high water in the Ohio Valley.

Funds obtained in the society's Easter campaign supplement money allotted the Kentucky Crippled Commission by state and federal governments and are used to help all crippled children, including the vast number incapacitated by polio last year. In addition to carrying on its regular program of helping the commission, part of the society's income is being set aside to build a convalescent home, as soon as materials are available.

Donors since Dr. Rosenthal's report published in The Leader last week, were as follows up to Tuesday afternoon:

Clothing Prices
Frozen March 19

OPA Acts To Cut Cost Of Dry Goods And Furniture,
Bring More Lower Priced Articles To Civilian
Stores; Level Established To Aid Home Front

(Associated Press Feature)
Washington, — OPA froze the price mark-ups of some 300,000 retailers selling clothes, dry goods, furniture and house furnishings Monday night. The aim, the agency explained, is to insure that consumers get the benefit of lowered factory prices which are forth-coming.

The action was announced by Price Administrator Chester Bowles as half of the War Production Board OPA plan to cut clothing costs six to seven percent and "return greater quantities of lower priced goods to the civilian market."

Each store was frozen to the mark-up margin that it had in use today, March 19. Price-tagging provisions were written into the order to help shoppers become their own price policemen.

The action will not roll back retail price increases which already have taken place on garments, shoes, dry goods, lamps and the other products affected, Bowles said, but it will guarantee that when their cost to the customer also will go down.

"Our main objective has been to work out a pricing method which would give customers direct and immediate benefits as a result of reductions in manufacturers' prices," Bowles said. "We believe the new regulation will accomplish our purpose."

OPA already has announced its "maximum average price order," designed to roll back manufacturers' price lines to the average level of the years 1942 and 1943; the new action ties consumer prices into that rollback.

"It also clears the way for price reductions at retail when similar programs, now in the planning stage, restore production of more furniture and house furnishings in lower price ranges," the price administrator reported.

The new order replaces five previous price regulations, therefore is more easily understood and used by dealers, Bowles said. Enforcement of ceilings by OPA also will become easier, he predicted.

Small stores were exempted by a clause permitting them to use the existing price orders if they preferred, but this applies only to concerns having net sales of less than $2,500 a year for all the items listed.

Over-Production Of Burley
Is Feared By Farm Bureau

Problems, dealing with a feared over-production of burley tobacco will be carried to the tobacco committee of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, J. E. Ownbey, district field agent of the federation, said this week.

Concern over prospects of a burley surplus that might lead to lower prices has been stirred by last season's record production and this year's increased acreage allotments, Ownbey told officers and directors of the Farm Bureau.

Ownbey said the matter would be carried to members of the tobacco committee when the federation's board of directors meets in Louisville March 26 and 27. The tobacco committee will be asked to convene March 28 to hear the proposal.

The idea of such a meeting would be to get the consensus of growers and try to arrive at some conclusion on whether to ask a reduction in 1946 allotments, Ownbey stated. Allotments for 1945 already have been determined and will include an increase of about 100,000 acres of burley in Kentucky, he added.

The field agent said growers in the 31 counties of the district covered by his office "have been talking" about prospects of a serious surplus of tobacco stocks.

They feel, as most tobacco men feel, that a drop in prices would be inevitable, he asserted.

County Agent's Column

By J. F. Graham

W. H. Armstrong, county agent, and the selection of varieties are the main factors in the selection of home orchard crops. The neglect is general to the fact that the average farmer is too busy to attend to the details of tree sprays. It does not have the proper equipment or material. It does not understand the nature of the pests that are attacking the trees. Controlling. A simple bulb spray for the home garden is available at the county agent's office; also, detailed information is available there for larger growers to solve the variety problem. The grower can get a variety from the home agent or from the Experiment Station. Those who take this advice or consult the experienced neighbor are likely to plant adapted varieties than those who depend solely on the glow-sticks and general dealers in nursery catalogs or nurserymen themselves. Those wanting the surest home fruit supply, planting of strawberries, possibly, grapes is suggested.

Non-bearing peach, pear trees, as a rule, are dormant spray (apple growth starts) for control. Young apples also a scab spray or two to hold their leaves. If, however, canker worms or

Cover Crop Feeds Big Lot of Stock

Simpson County Agent Woodrow Coots says more farmers should know about the cover crop experience of O. D. Meador. He sowed 12 1/2 acres to a mixture of 1 1/2 bushels of balbo rye, of crimson clover to the acre on a bushel of barley and 15 pounds Aug. 19. A month later he turned into the field 20 cattle, 30 sheep, 40 hogs and five horses and mules. The field furnished them sufficient feed until cold weather. Three hundred pounds of superphosphate and 50 pounds of ammonium nitrate an acre were applied.

other leaf eaters attack, an arsenical spray should be applied.

Apple scab that starts spreading from the old apple leaves on the ground at this time of year (especially in rainy seasons like this one) knocks off much young fruit and seriously disfigures others. Dry lime sulfur (three tablespoons per gallon water) applied in the pink bud stage, the calyx or petal fall stage and three weeks later, should give control. This year another such spray applied in the pre-pink stage, should be helpful because of the rains.

The worm sprays against apple worms (codling moth) are started just as the petals fall from the blossoms. A good arsenate of lead spray applied then will repel a poison dose on the top or calyx end of the young apple. Later this calyx folds together and is drawn into the core opening of the apple where it poisons many small worms later, since that spot is their most favored entrance place. Another arsenate of lead spray, three weeks after the calyx spray, when the worms are usually hatching rapidly is needed. Where worms are serious, repeat this spray in two weeks. Also, for late apples, another arsenical spray should be applied about July 1 for the second brood of worms. The first two codling moth sprays (two tablespoons of lead arsenate and three tablespoons lime per gallon) can be combined with lime sulfur for scab control, also.

For peaches, the first worm (plum curculio) spray comes just after the shucks have split off and the young fruits are about the size of a pea. A second worm spray should also be combined with wettable sulfur (not liquid or dry lime sulfur) for peach scab or "freckles" control when the small peaches are about one-half inch in diameter. This is an important peach spray. In general, plums can be handled about like peaches. For brown rot, sulfur sprays, should be applied to each peach variety a few weeks before it ripens.

To make white sauce more savory, add 2 whole cloves and 1/2 small onion.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

Because onions should be well on their way before warm weather comes, they should be started as early as the season and the soil are fit. March 15 is the "official" date.

Fertility should be high, particularly in nitrogen, as onions are a "leaf" crop. To the general fertilizing scheme should be added side-dressing as soon as there is a sign of growth. Used may be nitrate of soda, 1 pound to 100 feet of row; or ammonium nitrate, 1 pound to 150 feet; or pulverized poultry manure, 1 bushel to 300 feet.

Onions are grown in 3 ways: from "sets" or "slips" or from seed.

Sets come in 3 colors, red, yellow and white. A compromise in flavor and in yield are yellow sets, the white ones yielding poorly because of the smut disease, and the red ones having the most pronounced flavor. No matter what the color, the smaller the sets the fewer seed-stalks there will be. "Five-eighths inch and under" is a good size for which to ask. Sets are placed 3 inches in rows as close as 15 inches, and should be covered no deeper than is needed to keep them in line, as the bulb forms above ground and resents being buried at setting, or, later, by soil drawn to the row.

"Slips" are plants grown in the South or in hotbeds started in late of the Bermudas or Spanish types, January. Good varieties are any or Giant Silverskin, or American Prizetaker. Spacing in the rows should be 6 inches, as these onions can grow quite large, and the slips should be rooted no deeper than just to "anchor" them.

Growing onions from seeds is not always dependable in Kentucky, but Southport Globe (red, white yellow) can produce "picklers" at least, with larger onions among them. The surest sort for this purpose is Red Wethersfield, excellent too when strong flavor is desired. One ounce of seed sows 100 feet, and thinning should be done to 2 or 3 inches.

Onions should be kept clean of weeds and only shallowly cultivated. No more soil should be drawn to the rows than is unavoidable, as covering the bulbs surely sets them back.

There are two pests, the onion maggot and the thrip. The maggot come from eggs laid on or near the sets, and at setting time the egg-laying flies away. As this (1 pound to 30 gallons) to keep "drip" of formaldehyde and water calls for special equipment, not many home gardeners can use this treatment, however.

The thrip is a louse-like insect election, in November. A letter from my husband concerning my race appears below.

Pauline Cliff

TO THE PEOPLE OF CALDWELL COUNTY:

Germany
112th Infantry
March 3, 1945

I wish to concur in the plea set forth above by my wife for nomination for Sheriff of Caldwell county, subject to the action of the Republican party, Saturday, Aug. 4.

Again I want to express my sincere appreciation to the Republican party for nominating me and to all those who helped to elect me sheriff 4 years ago. I well know I had the support of my many Democratic friends in the general election, and that they also gave me most valued support throughout the campaign.

During the 2 years I was permitted to serve you, any serv-

Wants To Bid On That 'Beautiful Man'

Lexington. — A classified ad offering to sell a "Beautiful Man's Genuine Italian Heavy Cameo Ring" prompted this written reply from a woman reader: "I don't care anything about the ring, but I'd like to bid on the beautiful man."

Put rayon bedspreads, lace curtains, etc., in a pillow case before you put them in the washer. It will protect them from fraying and tearing.

ice I was able to render that was helpful to anyone was a great pleasure to me. I am very grateful to my many friends in Princeton, Fredonia and county-wide who have helped my deputies while I am away, and helped in other matters pertaining to my office. I shall never forget the colored people for their loyal support.

For the past year, you no doubt know, I have been in the armed services. I am now serving in Germany with the 112th Infantry, and I am proud to serve with an outfit such as it is and for a cause so great as exists to-day, as miserable as it is away from family and friends and enduring the hell of what goes with war.

I know that Pauline's experience, as acting sheriff in my absence, will better qualify her to serve you, if elected. My army experience, together with civilian legal procedure, will help me to assist when I am back again. I, too, like all service men, hope to find a job after victory has been won. I feel firmly astride the road home even if it should be by way of Berlin or Tokyo. We have been moving so fast I have had no mail from the old home town or from my family in 90 days.

I have no way of knowing who Pauline's opponents will be, but I would assure whoever it may be a fair, clean race, win or lose. I know the choice of the people is all she asks, and we will be pleased with the decision.

Her decision to make this race has not been a hasty one. First, she learned the work, and learned to like all the fine people she came in contact with through this important office. Since becoming acting sheriff, she has had much encouragement from the public to make this race. She feels that, since all must render service in the present crisis, that she might be rendering a further public service during the present manpower shortage, if elected. From a financial standpoint the office would be of utmost importance in helping to rear and educate our three children.

I will be very helpless in the campaign at home, since my time is fully employed in a far more important one. I will not have the opportunity to meet you in the office or on the street, or to call at your home to solicit your vote, which deprives me of a great deal of pleasure. I would certainly enjoy shaking hands with the people back home again. There is no more I can say or do, except that if our services have met with your approval, I earnestly solicit your vote and influence for my wife in the coming campaign and election.

I beg to remain,
Sincerely your friend,
Pvt. Mitchell Cliff

To Grow More Alfalfa

County Agent Leroy Northington is endeavoring to have at least one field of alfalfa in every community in McLean county, so all farmers can see how more hay can be produced. Because of extensive use of limestone and phosphate, he believes alfalfa will be grown on three-fourths of the farms by 1950. He also is advocating less redtop and more bluegrass and orchard grass, so the land will remain in grass longer in the rotation.

"For about two years I felt so dreadfully rundown and weak and suffered so badly from headaches that I often dreaded to see a new day dawn. I did not want to eat, I felt very restless and nervous, and I don't believe I got a real night's rest for more than a year. I had to resort to laxatives continually and if I didn't I would have those dreadful headaches. I felt so draggy all the time that it was an effort just to move around the house.

Game And Fish Division Boasts Increase Funds

Frankfort, March 20—The Game and Fish Division, under its new civil service setup, seems to be doing all right, according to a statement issued by Earl Wallace, director. He reports the $151,000 balance which showed on the books when he took over last year has been built up to $207,000, even though the department payroll has been doubled. Besides, the State has available $32,000 from the Pittman-Robinson Federal fund. He pointed out that finances of the division should continue to improve as conservation education gradually induces more of the potential 700,000 hunting and fishing license holders of Kentucky to pay the annual fee.

A 74 acre farm, located near Frankfort, has been purchased by the Game and Fish Commission for breeding Bob White quail, wild turkeys and raccoons and to raise food vines, bushes and trees for planting in areas of the State where such food is needed for wildlife.

Mr. Wallace said 12 acres will be devoted to growing such berry-bearing trees and shrubs as cover and food for all species of wildlife. He added that game will be distributed over the state by the commission. Planting of trees and shrubs when about 2 years old will be undertaken by the Kentucky sportsmen's clubs and the Junior Conservation League in various counties.

Then followed careful cutting, tailoring and pressing. Her only expenses were for the dry cleaning, but-

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

- 1 Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time" to come.
 - 2 Started 3 days before "your time", it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.
- Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.

Food Will Be Scarce Unless City Folk Aid Farmers, Plant Gardens

War Food Administrator Marvin Jones, warns that food shortages will be serious unless city people plant victory gardens and help farmers with crops. This conclusion was based upon estimates of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics which indicate a considerable reduction may be effected in supplies of meat, poultry, butter, evaporated milk, potatoes, fresh vegetables and perhaps yard. These predictions are being borne out as farmers' current marketings of food productions, other than whole milk and cereal grains, are lower than in either of the last 2 years.
